Discipleship and Ministerial Training Manual (A Foundational Christian Workers Manual) Abraham Akinola

The importance of foundational doctrines of the Christian faith is fundamental to the growth and development of the Church, particularly in an age where science and human philosophy is seeking to undermine true spiritual values and where global trends have infiltrated the tenets of Christianity.

The Pentecostal and Charismatic Movement in Africa has certainly not embraced in-depth knowledge of the bible as a component of her theology. There is so much allowance for mediocrity on the pulpits due to the dearth of knowledge among the clergy and volunteer Christian workers. This situation has grave implications on the spiritual state and growth of the Church.

This manual is a collection of foundational doctrines and concepts that equips the Christian worker with vital knowledge about the fall and redemption of man, the new creation realities, the law and the grace, perspectives in prayer and spiritual warfare, the person, gifts and fruit of the Holy Spirit amongst others.

Anyone well taught and instructed on these subjects will neither be barren nor unfruitful in the Christian walk and will certainly develop sure-footedness in the ministry of the gospel without fear of doing violence to the word of God. The teachings are simply outlined with exhaustive and biblically balanced scriptural references void of denominational bias and extreme doctrinal colorations liable to be offensive to any group or persons. The content is life-transforming and mind-renewing for everyone who will diligently undergo the training it is designed to offer.
